November Feature:

Vapac

Jacco has your solution for humidification. In order to maintain system efficiency, building integrity, and personnel health and morale, humidity levels must be maintained in all buildings. During the winter months humidity levels decrease due to dry, outside air being introduced through the HVAC systems and infiltration through doors, windows, etc., often causing humidity levels to drop below the standards established by ASHRAE. Your solution...VAPAC electrode humidifiers. Electrode steam humidifiers use the conductivity of potable water to boil it and produce clean atmospheric steam. Each humidifier includes one or more plastic cylinders containing a pair of electrodes and a mesh assembly. The system contains modulating control to insure the proper RH is maintained, and a digital screen display. Distribution can be accomplished with stainless steel duct distributors or a room distribution unit.
